

Explorations

e-journal of the Indian Sociological Society

Explorations is published twice a year: April and October. It is a double blind peer reviewed online journal. While the journal focuses mainly on the sociological studies of societies, histories and cultures of India, it also welcomes submissions of comparative studies with other countries, especially those of South Asia.

Explorations is open to both quantitative and qualitative research. While the journal encourages research publication of young researchers, it also welcomes contributions of senior scholars. The journal also carries interviews with eminent sociologists and social scientists who share their own experiences of teaching and research. The journal seeks to be a platform for overall professional development of the practitioners of sociology.
