

Reminiscences of Prof. T. Chandramohan Reddy

(1946-2024)

Professor T. Chandramohan Reddy, a prominent teacher of Sociology in Tamil Nadu, passed away at the age of 78 on 5th May, 2024 following a brief illness due to a fall. Born in 1946, he obtained his Master's Degree and Ph.D. from Sri Venkateswara University, Tirupati. He began his teaching career at PG Extension Centre of University of Madras in 1983 and later joined Bharathiar University in 1985. He served for more than two decades and retired as a Head of the Department, Bharathiar University, Coimbatore, Tamil Nadu.

As a revered Sociology Professor he was more than a teacher; a mentor, and a guide to many. He had a passion for understanding society's intricacies and critically analyzed the world around and made significant impact on student's lives. He had a strong commitment to academic excellence and was a source of inspiration to all those who worked with him. He maintained high standards in his academic and personal endeavours. He leaves behind a rich legacy of intellectual curiosity, research and learning. His scholarly contributions enriched academic discourse and enabled a nurturing environment for everyone to be felt valued and respected. A teacher of his calibre is rare indeed.

Our heartfelt condolences to his family, friends and the academic community. May we find comfort in the cherished memories of his remarkable life. His life will continue to inspire and guide us. May his soul rest in peace.
